Dear Hiring Team,

The first time a vendor ledger wouldn't match the bank statement, nobody around me could tell me why — it was a break that had been carried forward for three months before it landed on my desk. I traced it back line by line until the pattern showed up, then rebuilt the reconciliation process so it wouldn't happen again. That's more or less how I've approached the work ever since.

I'm reaching out about the opening on your finance team. I've spent the last four years in SAP FI/MM — reconciling bank, vendor, and GL accounts, running AP/AR end to end, and owning Procure-to-Pay across two organisations. Reconciliation is really the thread running through all of it, whether that's closing out bank breaks, clearing AP/AR open items through F-44 and F-32, or tracing GR/IR mismatches back to source. I'm comfortable owning that process start to finish, documenting it clearly enough that someone else could pick it up, and fixing what keeps breaking instead of just patching around it — which is also why I ended up building the Power BI reporting suite my current team still runs on every week.

I'm still working through the FMVA curriculum on my own time and reading into treasury operations and fund structures, because I want the next step to be more analytical, not just more of the same reconciliation work at a bigger scale. I don't have direct treasury or nostro experience yet — I'm upfront about that — but the underlying skill is the same one I use every day: finding where two numbers disagree and working out why.

I'd welcome the chance to talk about how this background fits what you're building. Thank you for considering my application.

Sincerely,

Manu Xavier Michael
